Here's an equivalence mapping for your main characters:

Equivalences Between Your Book's Mythic Characters & Nile Valley Figures

- Falcon (Eternal Falcon) → Horus

  Symbol of divine kingship, vision, and renewal. Your central metaphor directly ties to Horus, the falcon-headed god.
- Isis (mother, restorer) → Isis (historical continuity)

  Embodiment of motherhood, magic, and resilience. Isis was worshipped far beyond Egypt, showing Nile Valley influence.
- Osiris (fallen and resurrected king) → Osiris

  Lord of the underworld and fertility, representing death and rebirth—parallels Nile flood cycles.
- Set (chaotic force) → Set

  Force of disorder and necessary tension within Nile Valley cosmology.
- Ma'at (cosmic balance) → Principle of Ma'at

  Though not always personified as a "character," Ma'at is the foundation of Egyptian order, mirrored in your book's themes of balance.
- Anubis (guide of souls) → Anubis

  Guardian of the necropolis, linked to embalming and funerary practices of the Nile Valley.
- Ra (solar ruler) → Ra

  Central to Nile Valley worldview of cosmic cycles and timekeeping.
- Thoth (scribe, wisdom keeper) → Thoth

  Represents writing, law, astronomy—direct intellectual contribution from Nile Valley to global civilization.
- Apophis (chaos serpent) → Apophis (Apep)

  The eternal adversary, directly aligned with Nile cosmology's explanation of chaos.
- Ammit (devourer of unworthy hearts) → Ammit

  Embodies moral justice and annihilation of dishonor.
- Shai (destiny) → Shai

  Personification of fate and destiny—another Nile Valley figure preserved in your narrative.

- Pharaoh figure (bridge between worlds) → Historical Pharaohs
  Every Nile Valley ruler embodied the mythic Horus on earth and Osiris in death, a concept embedded in your text.
